

Paving and drainage

The materials that we use on the street can make a big difference to the character of the area. In a historic market town like Selby, there are still some pieces of historic materials or character-conscious design, and others that have been lost, usually when a new road layout or uses have been required. We also must consider the practicalities of modern living and keep a note where areas need repair, so something can be done to review it.

	Yes	No
Is it messy, broken or badly repaired?
What can you see? Is any paving part of the area's character that needs to be conserved? Are there any that you think have been well maintained or repaired? For example, cobbles, or stone setts
Are surfaces sufficiently well drained to prevent them becoming slippery or collecting large puddles?
Note any Comments here:		