Selby Timeline

Take a walk through the riverside park and look for the twelve brass paving slabs that depict Selby's history.

The artwork was created by sculptor Ailsa Magnus and ranges from conflicts on the Ouse between the Saxons and the Vikings; to the 'Stars and Stripes' of the American flag, representing the American and Canadian aircrews who were stationed in Selby during WWII.

TOP TIP:

Grab some paper and chalk and use the artwork to create beautiful brass rubbings.

2

Selby Abbey

Possibly Selby's most iconic feature, the Abbey has been at the centre of the town's history since the 12th Century.

The architecture has continued to evolve, prompted by two fires that almost destroyed the Abbey! After the first fire in 1340, the striking stained glass windows were added to the south isle of the Nave. Then disaster hit in 1906 when a huge fire, that started in the organ chamber, destroyed the roof and tower. Thankfully, a donation from William Liversidge led to restoration of the South Transept and the addition of another, wonderful stained glass window!

3

Market Cross

The Market Cross signifies the spot of Selby's open-air market, a weekly event that has been ongoing since the 14th Century.

The market was started by the Monks of the Abbey, but trade went on to include imports that had been transported up the River Ouse and there were even reports of farm labourers offering themselves for work!

Disappearing Street

Can you spot the false archway filled with bricks at 25 Finkle Street?

This is actually the site of Lees Terrace, a street of houses that could be accessed via a small wooden door. In 1996, renovations to the surrounding buildings led to the removal of Lees Terrace, giving it the status of a disappearing street!

— 0.8 miles to Westfield Cemetery

5

Westfield Cemetery

Westfield Cemetery contains many white marble graves of men who flew and fought in the Royal Flying Corps and Royal Air Force between 1914 - 1945.

Once a year members of the Clergy and groups of school children take part in a remembrance service to commemorate those that lost their lives in the war.
