Points of interest

The village of Middleton Tyas is less than a mile to the east of the hustle and bustle of the A1 at Scotch Corner. The name Middleton is of Anglo-Saxon origin and means middle-farm or middle-settlement. Tyas is a Norman family name but no evidence has come to light that Middleton Tyas once belonged to a family of that name.

This circular walk is produced by North Yorkshire County Council. Find more walks and rides on our website www.northyorks.gov.uk/walking. We welcome any feedback about this walk, contact details can be found on the back page.

Points of interest

The village lies on the eastern end of a limestone ridge which forms the watershed between the Tees and Swale catchments. Historically limestone was quarried locally for building stone and the production of quicklime. Quarrying for road stone still continues to the north of the village.

Small deposits of particularly rich copper ore were mined near the village in the 18th and 19th centuries. You can see mounds of spoil dug from mine shafts in the fields near the church. The remains of the mine's engine house in the woods below the church can also be seen from the walk.

The Church of St Michael and All Angels is an ancient structure, with Norman arches and pillars on the north side, and early English Gothic on the south. It was restored and renovated between 1867-79 under the direction of Sir George Gilbert Scott.
