Points of interest

There is controversy over the meaning of the name 'Thixendale'. One suggestion is that it comes from 'sixteen dales' as there are said to be sixteen dales that lead in to Thixendale. An alternative is 'Sigsten's Valley' which is an old Scandinavian name. Thixendale was mentioned as Sixtedale/Sixtendale/Xistendale in the 1086 Domesday book.

This circular walk is produced by North Yorkshire County Council. Find more walks and rides on our website www.northyorks.gov.uk/walking. We welcome any feedback about this walk, contact details can be found on the back page.

Route description

1. From Thixendale church (grid reference SE844610), walk west along village street. Just after the last house on right go up track following the “Wolds Way/Centenary Way” sign. Take in the views to your left of Water Dale (and the road to Aldro) and Thixen Dale.

2. Towards the top of the hill, look out for a Wolds Way/Centenary Way sign and take the track to your left. Pass through a waymarked handgate and continue ahead along a track.

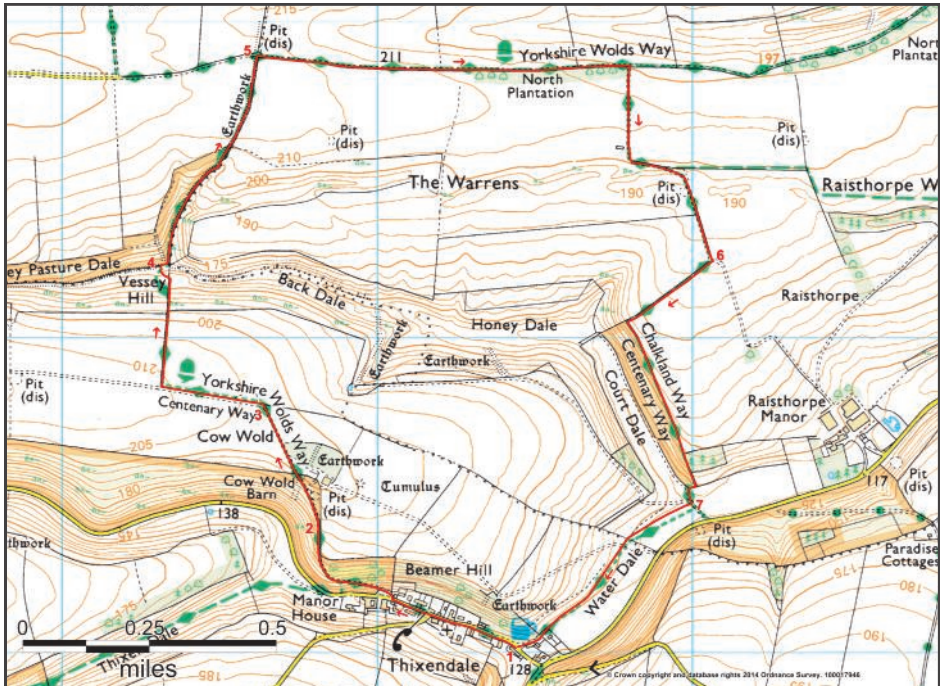

3. Where the track turns left follow the signage to go straight ahead into a field and turn left to walk along the field edge with the field boundary on your left. At the top of the field turn right by another sign. The path descends to reach a waymarked handgate. Pass through this and continue ahead steeply down into a dry valley and another handgate to your left. Go through this and the route curves round to your right and another handgate.

4. Go through the handgate and follow the public bridleway sign. The fence should be on your right as you turn left up the valley. Near the top of the valley is a deep earthwork ditch. Continue ahead through a waymarked fieldgate and follow the field edge path. Where the path divides go right through a patch of woodland to a track and a signpost.

5. Turn right and follow the Wolds Way. Follow a clear track for $\frac{3}{4}$ mile (1.2km). At the end of the woodland look for a signpost on the right. Turn right here and follow the Centenary Way going down the edge of a field until a track is reached. Continue ahead along the track that bears right past a signpost.

6. Follow the track passing a signposted junction with another bridleway where the track turns right. Where the track turns left turn right off it (signposted) and walk down the field side on a grassy track. At the end of the field leave the track and go through a waymarked handgate. Take in the view of Honey Dale (straight ahead) and Court Dale. The path goes left – along the hillside to descend to a handgate in the valley bottom

7. Follow the footpath sign straight ahead across a field and across a track. Go over a signposted stile and continue ahead crossing another track. Keep to the left of a group of trees and descend towards Thixendale's cricket field on the valley floor. Pass the club house and go over a stile, by a fieldgate, on to a lane passing houses on your left and the village pub. On reaching the road turn right, back to the starting point.

The Yorkshire Wolds are formed from chalk. The open character of the hills contrasts with enclosed valleys, many of which were created at the end of the last glacial period as meltwater created channels through the chalk. Now there are no significant watercourses in the area due to the permeable nature of chalk so ponds are present in most villages.
